

Overcoming addiction requires focus, determination, and a clear plan to create lasting change. Setting goals is a crucial part of recovery, but not just any goals—goals that are clear, achievable, and meaningful. Whether you're focusing on reducing cravings, rebuilding relationships, or improving your overall well-being, SMART goals can help you stay motivated and measure your progress.

SSpecific

What is your goal? Write down exactly what you want to achieve. Be clear and detailed about what you expect to accomplish.

Example: I want to attend Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) meetings to build a support network and stay accountable in my sobriety.

MMeasurable

How will you measure your progress? Determine how you will track your progress and know when you have achieved your goal.

I will attend three AA meetings per week and log my attendance in a journal.

AAchievable

Is your goal achievable? Consider what might make this goal difficult and plan how you can overcome those challenges.

I will attend three meetings per week because they are offered multiple times daily, and I can schedule them around my work and personal commitments. Because I feel anxious about attending meetings alone I will ask my sponsor to accompany me for the first few sessions.

RRelevant

Why is this goal important to you? Does this goal align with your recovery needs and long-term values?

Attending AA meetings supports my recovery by giving me access to people who understand my struggles and providing tools to manage triggers.

TTime-Bound

What is your deadline for achieving this goal? Set a specific date by which you plan to achieve your goal.

I will consistently attend three AA meetings per week for the next three months and reassess my progress at the end of that period.

Be Flexible

If you're struggling to reach a goal, don't be afraid to adjust it. It's okay to change the timeline, make the goal smaller, or alter the steps as needed.

Celebrate Milestones

Reward yourself for every step or milestone you reach, no matter how small. This could be as simple as taking a break, enjoying a favorite treat, or planning a fun activity.

Give Yourself Enough Time

Make sure you have enough time to achieve your goals without feeling overwhelmed. It's better to allow extra time and feel accomplished than to set an unrealistic deadline and feel discouraged.

Stay Patient & Be Kind to Yourself

Progress may be slow, and setbacks can happen. Remind yourself that change takes time, and be kind to yourself if things don't go perfectly.

What obstacles have I encountered, and how have I handled them?

What progress have I made so far? What am I proud of?

What support or resources might help me continue making progress?
